Weekly Price Watch: 21 August 2021

Directorate: Statistics & Economic Analysis

Sub-directorate: Economic Analysis

Domestic grain prices traded positive this week, with an exception of white maize which decreased by 0.2%, While Local prices of yellow maize, Wheat, Sunflower and Soybean rose by 0.5%, 3.4%, 2.8 and 1.8% respectively this week compared to the previous week. The local prices for sweet sorghum remained unchanged this week compared to the previous week.

On the international front, also prices traded positive this week, with an exception of US Soybean which decreased by 3%. US maize and US Wheat increased by 1.0%, 2.1% respectively.

In the week of 20 August, SAGIS release the Weekly Grain Trade data which was the fifteenth week of South Africa's 2021/22 maize marketing year according to Agbiz, total maize exports amounted to 1,2 tonnes, which equates to 48% of the seasonal forecast of 2,7 million tonnes (down by 7% y/y). "The decline in South Africa's maize export forecast is because of an anticipated decline in Southern Africa's demand on the back of an improvement in the region's supplies" says Agbiz.

Latest News Developments

In the near term, business activity will remain at risk due to the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic, the slow pace of the vaccine rollout and related policy responses. Containment measures will weigh on household and capital spending, though recovering foreign demand will support external trade, particularly commodities exports. The country's economic challenges will remain elevated amid rolling electricity blackouts, rising utilities costs and supply chain risks. The scope for meaningful structural reforms taking place in the near term will remain severely limited by political tensions in the quarters ahead. In the medium-to-long term, policy uncertainty surrounding the restructuring of state-run enterprises, stalled anti-corruption efforts and uncertainty surrounding land reform including the impact that this may have on property rights and the credibility of key institutions, will remain key concerns for investors.

That said, South Africa remains the most industrialised and broad-based economy in Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA), and it is an established gateway to the Southern Africa region. The country is a strong regional performer due to strong contract enforceability, solid information and communications technology and transport infrastructure, large banking and financial services sectors and a broad selection of experienced local partners. However, regionally high labour costs, rigid labour market regulations, the frequency of widespread industrial strikes and high crime levels significantly weigh on the country's attractiveness as an investment destination.

Whilst South Africa's livestock sector will broadly experience growth over our forecast period, we highlight mounting near-term risks in this quarterly report. First, the country continues to grapple with Covid-19 outbreaks, with level 3 restrictions (including a curfew) in place as of August 2021. Continued restrictions will further slow the consumption recovery for some products including beef and sugar, for which we have revised down our 2021 forecasts. Second, the livestock sector has experienced disease issues in 2021, and as a result we have revised down some of our production forecasts. Third, civil unrest earlier in 2021 caused disruption to the sugar sector, and further unrest remains a risk going forwards. Over the long term we forecast positive production growth across the sectors we cover due to economic growth and export opportunities encouraging investment, as well as the impacts of government initiatives to support the sector. Grains and poultry production will outperform, whilst sugar production growth will be lacklustre due to profitability challenges. Economic growth over the coming years will also support consumption across the commodities we cover.
