6.	Description of content: FSANZ has approved amendments to the Australia New Zealand Food Standards Code (the Code) to permit the bioconversion method of producing specific steviol glycosides, rebaudioside M and rebaudioside I. The use of three genetically modified enzymes as processing aids are permitted for this specific purpose. The bioconversion method of production is consistent with Codex standards. The enzymes used and their sources are very similar but not identical to those listed in the Joint FAO/WHO Expert Committee on Food Additives (JECFA) specifications for steviol glycosides, being the (Framework for) Steviol Glycosides.
7.	Objective and rationale: [X] food safety, [] animal health, [] plant protection, [] protect humans from animal/plant pest or disease, [] protect territory from other damage from pests. All applications to change the Code must be assessed in the context of the following objectives: (a) the protection of public health and safety; (b) the provision of adequate information relating to food to enable consumers to make informed choices; and (c) the prevention of misleading or deceptive conduct.
8.	Is there a relevant international standard? If so, identify the standard:
	[X]	Codex Alimentarius Commission (e.g. title or serial number of Codex standard or related text): Codex Alimentarius Commission (The Codex General Standard for Food additives (GSFA) CXS 192-1995, has provisions for steviol glycosides produced by bioconversion. The JECFA specification for Steviol Glycosides - specifically called the (Framework for) Steviol Glycosides. JECFA is the risk assessment authority for Codex food additive provisions).
	[]	World Organization for Animal Health (OIE) (e.g. Terrestrial or Aquatic Animal Health Code, chapter number):
	[]	International Plant Protection Convention (e.g. ISPM number):
	[]	None

Does this proposed regulation conform to the relevant international standard?
